Nazis Say Americans East of Aachen Continue Big Offensive

By International News Service
PARIS, Dec. 1.—Armored and infantry forces of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army were reported in dispatches from the front today to have smashed forward to reach the Saar river in three places.

Gen. Patton's powerful forces joined in raging battles to secure jump-off points across water barriers protecting the Reich home and as the American First and Ninth armies east of Gellenkirchen and Aachen established an 11-mile bridgehead on the west bank of the Roer which bars access to the stretches of the Cologne plain.

A wireless dispatch by the Nazi DNB agency said that the Americans east of Aachen are continuing their big offensive and admitted

Urges Motorists Not To Delay Car Inspections

Motor vehicle inspection has become a vital factor in the prosecution of the war, Secretary of Revenue David W. Harris declared today in a statement urging Pennsylvania car owners, who have not had inspection in the current period to delay no longer in having it done.

Secretary of Revenue Harris said:

"Car inspection has ceased to be just another safety precaution. It has now become a vital factor in the prosecution of the war because of the tremendous importance of our transportation system to the war effort. The generals on the battlefronts are calling for more guns, more ammunition and other supplies to keep up the tempo of the great drive that is now on. It will take transportation of all kinds to meet that demand. War workers must step up production, and to do that cars must be available to get them to and from plants. Trucks are required to haul munitions and other supplies to points of shipment. Defective cars will fail in all of these vital efforts; so there must be no defective cars to contribute to delay or a breakdown of the transportation system.

"Proper inspection will guard against that. It will preserve the life of cars that are beginning to weaken and will eliminate those which have become a menace because of mechanical defects. If your car has not been inspected in the current inspection period, which began November 1, 1944, delay no longer. Arrange at once to have it done. It is your patriotic duty."

HEAVY FIGHTING ALONG ITALIAN FRONT

Rome.—Heavy fighting raged today on the center of the Italian front as the Germans made savage attempts to reestablish their Gothic line positions south of Bologna which were seized a month ago by the U. S. Fifth Army.

Bitter clashes occurred in the area south of Mount Castellaro and east of Mount Belmonte where the Fifth Army halted the desperate thrust of the Nazis which regained at least two towns for the Germans.

The Fifth Army right flank countered the offensive of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's columns by slamming forward to wrest Mont Fregiano and the town of Tramonti, near the Florence-Faenza highway, from Nazi control.

The British Eighth Army launched a strong tank-supported attack against the Faenza-Ravenna highway and battered German defenses in the Alberto sector where the Germans bar the road to Russia.

Announcement has been made that the children attending the Richboro school raised $54.36 in the recent Red Cross campaign. The largest contribution was made by the junior class.

Members of the faculty held their monthly social in the home economics room with Mrs. Overholt and Mrs. Tomlinson acting as hostesses.

The student council is making preparations for activities during Christmas week. The council will send Christmas cards to former students now in the service.

Girls in the home economics department are making Christmas toys to be turned over to the Junior Red Cross.

Slight damage in the "flash flood" was reported at Sellersville, Tuesday, as Branch creek rose to a level that began to alarm residents along the "water front" in the Lenape Park section. The reason little alarm was felt generally was because it happened after dark and few persons saw the great and sudden surge of the water that covered a strip of 20 acres at the centre of the borough.

Some cellars were filled again by the downpour, which appeared to be purely local in its extent.

Some residents believe the frequent flooding is caused by the recent reconstruction of the bridge at Main street which has arches so narrow they cannot carry the heavy output of the storm sewers from North and South Main streets, as well as from Park avenue, Hughes avenue and Walnut street.

Ensign Dick Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. D. Harris, of Buckingham, and formerly an instructor at the Fanny Chapman Memorial Swimming Pool, Doylestown, writing at sea, gives praise to the work of the Red Cross.

DOYLESTOWN MAY ADOPT CHEST PLAN

County Seat Group Considers Having One Campaign To Aid Many Charities

THE PLAN IS DISCUSSED

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 1.—After having been assigned the subject of the establishment of a community chest here, the Rotary Club, one of the organization-members of the Doylestown Community Service Council made a report at the meeting of the council by submitting a stack of literature on the subject published by professional promoters of the movement.

Following two hours of discussion on the subject, the literature was handed back to Charles F. Beatty, the representative of the Rotary club, with the request that his club make a complete survey of the subject and submit plans in detail for the operation of the community chest in the borough.

Dr. John J. Bridgeman, during the discussion, called for a poll of the representatives present as to their personal opinions of the desirability of a chest, with the result that two of the ten voting favored the chest, unqualifiedly, while the others favored it theoretically. All present were of the opinion that with a community chest having only one campaign during the year for funds, every person called upon to donate would welcome it.

One of the greatest difficulties advanced at the meeting was that certain of the institutions that make regular drives for funds would not join a community chest because of the possibility of not getting as large contributions as they obtain by their own drives. Among the institutions named during the discussion

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

Leak In The Dike

Washington, Nov. 30.—THE REASON for the renewed warnings now being sounded about the determined drive of the CIO for a general increase in steel wages, though that by itself would seem enough to justify the fears from which few thoughtful men are free.

BUT, to this drive, which already has forced the War Labor Board into concessions, obviously against its judgment and which promises to obtain, through the President, more and greater concessions, there is to be added the fact that in neither White House nor Treasury is there anything resembling a fiscal policy adequate to meet realistically the unprecedented problem involved in a $200,000,000,000 debt. The combination of a successful labor attack upon the Little Steel formula and the complete absence of tax leadership or financial courage in the

Here is something to think about tonight before you drift off into slumber:

"The Marines who died at Saipan would stir uneasily in their graves if they knew that some of us at home are thinking of victory over Germany in terms of new automobiles or refrigerators—rather than in terms of total effort against Japan."

The speaker is Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, of the Marines, whose son died for America in the Pacific.

The Sixth War Loan gives you the opportunity to meet the challenge of his statement. Neither the home front nor the fighting front will pay a soft price for the march on Tokyo. More than four million armed, fanatic Japs backed by a home front of 73,000,000 people on a slave basis producing for war, bar the road to victory. No Hirohito on a white horse compels you to work 12 hours a day and eat a starvation diet. Is staying on the job and putting every possible cent above the necessities into War Bonds asking too much?

As you recall General Denig's words, your urgent duty is to answer that voice with this pledge: "My thinking, my money, my time will stay in this war to the finish."

LOCAL SOLDIER IS SERVING WITH THE FIFTH ARMY OF GENERAL CLARK IN ITALY; MEMBER OF OUTSTANDING ENGINEER UNIT

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy, Dec. 1.—Private First Class Raymond D. Gorman, 317 Walnut street, Bristol, Pa., serving every day in the Italian campaign, is a member of an outstanding engineer unit which has issued more than 80,000 tons of engineer supplies to mountain-bound troops of Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army.

His unit of 38 soldiers, the 1st Platoon, 451st Engineer Depot Company, operates a huge depot—the only American depot of its kind in Italy—a few miles from the frontlines. In the rain-soaked mountains of the pierced Gothic zone, these engineers are supplying bulldozers, road-graders, sandbags, picks and shovels, and a hundred other items needed to keep the Fifth Army front active.

The industrious platoon handles thousands of requisitions and the men take pride in their record of not once having refused any involving an operational necessity.

In keeping abreast of the advancing Fifth Army from Salerno to the German barricades before Bologna, the engineer depot has changed sites 12 times. It has operated from Salerno, Avellino, Santa Maria, Vairano, Sessa, Fondi, Rome, Civitavecchia, Piombino, Casaglia, and north of Florence. During the speed drive to Rome, the engineers of the 1st Platoon operated three depots simultaneously.

These depots consolidated at Rome and spurred northward shortly thereafter with their vast equipment loaded atop 500 trucks—enough space for two infantry divisions. Since then each of their moves has necessitated the same number of trucks.

A feature of the platoon's activities is an attached group of Italian engineer soldiers, who have efficiently salvaged thousands of dollars' worth of equipment which is re-issued immediately to Fifth Army units.

General Clark awarded a Fifth Army Plaque and Clasp to the platoon for its efficiency. Leader of the unit is First Lieutenant Michael F. Coyne, of Philadelphia, Pa.

During the African campaign, the platoon helped operate the engineer base depot at Casablanca. These engineers left the United States on February 8, 1943, but due to a collision at sea failed to reach Africa until 40 days later, March 18, 1943. En route, their ship limped into a Bermudan port, where the men spent an unplanned three weeks' vacation.

BUY YOUR GIFT FOR 'G. I. JOE' AT ONCE

Joy in Playing Santa To The Yank Women and Men Who Gave

FOR THE HOSPITALIZED

Have you bought your gift for "G. I. Joe" and "G. I. Joe"? Time is getting short, and those girls and boys who truly gave should not be forgotten when it comes to the receiving end!

At Christmas time it is the hope of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, and others interested in this state-wide movement, that disabled servicemen and servicewomen and veterans hospitalized in Pennsylvania be remembered. Every man, woman and child has an opportunity to thus play Santa Claus to those who represented them on the war fronts.

As they lie in hospital beds, or sit in wheel-chairs on hospital sun decks, or take feeble steps during recuperative periods, there will be given them a measure of real cheer when your gifts arrive.

It is asked that nothing perishable and no foodstuffs be sent. The time is getting short. About three weeks remain before Christmas arrives. So go out today and buy one or more of the gifts on the suggested list. Among them are: Books; Mysteries, classics, Bibles, comics, Westerns, humor, etc.

Stationery, games, playing cards, air mail stamps, fountain pens, pencils, pencil sharpeners, picture folders.

Toiletries: Powders, lotions, foot powders, shaving soaps, tooth paste and powder, bath towels, lipsticks, rouge, deodorants, nail polish and remover, compacts, permanent wave sets, make-up mirrors, hair combs and brushes.

Good sun glasses, scarfs, chambray gloves, bandannas, bed socks, bedroom slippers, sleeveless sweaters, tee shirts, wash clothes.

Pipes, tobacco, lighters, cigarettes, pipe cleaners, tobacco pouches.

Pocket knives, identification bracelets.

Wants To Buy An Airdale Puppy

(By "The Stroller")

A woman riding through Bristol on a P. R. R. express train has written to ask who in this area has airdale puppies for sale.

The letter, addressed to The Bristol Chamber of Commerce, was delivered to the Municipal Building and told into the hands of John S. Roberts, Jr., borough engineer.

In the letter, according to Mr. Roberts, the lady signs herself "Mrs. Sidney Smith, Jr." She gives her address in Georgia and writes that while riding through Bristol she saw a large sign along the railroad which read "Airdale Puppies for Sale."

The lady further states that she is very anxious to buy an airdale puppy for a Christmas gift and would appreciate it if she is advised of the correct name and address of the person having airdale puppies for sale.

Anyone having the information desired is asked to so advise Mr. Roberts.

En route, their ship limped into a Bermudan port, where the men spent an unplanned three weeks' vacation.

These depots consolidated at Rome and spurred northward shortly thereafter with their vast equipment loaded atop 500 trucks—enough space for two infantry divisions. Since then each of their moves has necessitated the same number of trucks.

A feature of the platoon's activities is an attached group of Italian engineer soldiers, who have efficiently salvaged thousands of dollars' worth of equipment which is re-issued immediately to Fifth Army units.

General Clark awarded a Fifth Army Plaque and Clasp to the platoon for its efficiency. Leader of the unit is First Lieutenant Michael F. Coyne, of Philadelphia, Pa.

During the African campaign, the platoon helped operate the engineer base depot at Casablanca. These engineers left the United States on February 8, 1943, but due to a collision at sea failed to reach Africa until 40 days later, March 18, 1943. HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

When a custom has lasted forty years, it is only fair to say that it has become a tradition. That is the case with Christmas Seals, for it was in 1904 that the idea of a stamp to carry the news of the fight against tuberculosis was first conceived. Since then, the proceeds of the annual Seal sale have financed the organized campaign to rid the United States and eventually the world of one of its worst plagues.

Forty years ago it was its worst plague, for then tuberculosis ranked first among diseases which take the most human lives. Now, largely because of preventive and remedial measures sponsored by thousands of state and local agencies, it has been pushed back into seventh place.

Tuberculosis is still a threat to the national health, as the toll of 56,000 fatalities among its victims in the United States last year bears witness. But until war-time strains undermined resistance to the disease, progress was slow but sure. It will pick up again when hostilities cease—provided funds are available for the educational and case-finding programs with which health agencies fight the white plague.

It is probably a good thing that most people buy Christmas Seals as a routine part of the holiday observances. The Seals lend a bit of color to letter and package, adding their own message of good will to Yuletide greetings.

Now that there are a myriad of demands on one's generosity, there is satisfaction in knowing that even these tiny pieces of paper are doing their part in the war, maintaining the vitality of the home front by protecting health and saving manpower. In war and in peace, Christmas Seals are symbols of America's striving for happier, healthier living.

WHAT DO NAZIS EXPECT?

While the powers engaged in crushing Germany approach the conclusion of their task, many theories have been advanced as to what shall be done with the land of the Nazis. Most of these have at least some merit. Americans are primarily concerned with the return of the men and women who have offered themselves in the battles to beat down the Hun and in giving them the care to which they are entitled.

But so far Germany herself has put forth no offers, suggestions or even hints of what sort of peace she expects. If there are Germans who are capable of contrition and would like to be restored to a seat in the family of nations, now is the time for them to assert themselves.

The complete silence of all Germans on the subject of a post-war Germany is not an admission of war guilt, it is rather proof of a sullen determination of an outlaw race that if it cannot pursue a course of pillage and plunder it will inflict as much damage as possible upon the world before it is finally conquered.

Nips have lost more than 800 ships since Pearl Harbor. Hiding the Jap navy is becoming increasingly easy.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

point out that, regardless of the WLB's contention that this does not smash the Little Steel wage agreement, that that is exactly what it does; that it greatly enhances the dangers of inflation; that the increase inevitably must be passed on to the public. Notwithstanding all this and, though the Government's figures contradict the CIO's figures on the increased cost of living, the raise has come through and additional raises are pending. To any impartial person, this prompt post-election concession must seem a clear reward for political services. This, of course, will be denied but the circumstantial evidence is pretty overwhelming. Perhaps if the CIO had supported Mr. Dewey instead of Mr. Roosevelt it would have obtained its raise just the same, but there are not many who believe that. Rewarding one's supporters after the election is an established custom of practical politics and this "payoff" would not be so bad if it were not at the public expense and if it did not endanger the national security by enhancing the chances of a ruinous inflation.

BUT that is what it does. Here is a President who time and again has pointed out the dangers of inflation, who has eloquently urged his high-titled aides to "hold the line" and is certainly aware of the risk involved in permitting a "leak in the dike." Yet, right after the election, a board over which he has unquestioned control, under pressure from his chief political support, renders a decision which opens up a very considerable leak. No one doubts now that the CIO, one way or another, will get most of what it is asking for the steelworkers and that this success will be followed by demands for increases from union labor leaders all down the line. Everybody agrees that the grant to the steelworkers cannot be an isolated instance. If they are entitled to their increase on the cost-of-living ground, so are the others.

AT ANY rate they will make their fight. Having granted the increase for one, it will be almost impossible to refuse it to others. Thus other leaks will be created. There will be more money for the workers but less goods for civilians to buy, and more and wider black markets. Blind to the national interests, the other unions can be depended upon to exert their full weight to "get theirs" once the steel increases have gone through. The basic trouble, of course, is that there never has been any rigid control of prices. The Administration started out by trying to control prices without controlling food costs, wages or rents. It never has rigidly and really controlled these. It always has been fighting rear-guard actions. This is no reflection upon Mr. Bowles, of the OPA, Mr. Vinson, economic stabilizer, or Mr. Byrnes, the war mobilizer, who have done the best they could with inadequate legislation and insufficient power.

WITH the leak in the dike permitted by the President's board and sanctioned by the President, their jobs, hard enough under the best conditions, have become very much more difficult. And no matter what they say they know it, too. It would be a pretty fine thing some day to find a man in some administration post whose loyalty to the American people was greater than his loyalty to or fear of Mr. Roosevelt and who, confronted with a dangerous yielding to political pressure, such as involved in this situation, would get up on his hind legs and tell the country the facts.

SMOKEY, COMBAT INFANTRY MASCOT, RETURNS HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

By International News Service
SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Dec. 1 (INS) — "Smokey" and her GI master are on the way home for Christmas after serving 29 months in the Southwest Pacific with the 32nd Infantry Division.

Smokey is a mongrel dog, whose home for the last three and a half years has been wherever Uncle Sam decided to station the combat division.

Smokey was just a stray brown and white dog back in 1941 when a group of soldiers stationed at Camp Livingston, La., "inducted" her into the infantry. Later, when the division moved north to Fort Devens, Mass., Smokey was on the troop train. Next time the trip to the west coast, and the mascot of Company "X" was just beginning her travels.

In April of 1942, the Red Arrow Division left the United States bound for Australia and Smokey was smuggled aboard a troop transport in a barracks bag. The Pacific held no beauty for Smokey, and she was seasick most of the way. But she was one of the first "GIs" to see overseas duty in this theatre.

Smokey liked the "Land Down

Under" and was having the time of her life trotting along beside the troops as they drilled and hiked.

In a few months the division sailed north to New Guinea and the battle at Buna. The commanding officer decided it was no place for Smokey, so she was left behind with the rear echelon at Port Moresby. When the Japs had been turned back, the 32nd Division was again stationed in Australia. When the division returned to the combat area, Smokey was with it.

Only once during her Army career did she report for sick call, limping in one day with an injured foot, which had to be bandaged. She always reported at drill call and usually was the first one out for reveille.

When Tech. Sergt. Warren Johnson, of Winchester, Wis., left for home after 29 months overseas, Smokey, who also met the rotation requirements, accompanied him.

For her overseas service as an adopted member of the 32nd Infantry division and a member of General Douglas MacArthur's forces, Smokey can sport five foreign service stripes.

and the former the Tunganians. Coconut growing is quite extensive on the islands, and Clark said a number of men have been killed as the result of coconuts falling on them. All coconuts, it was said, must be smoked in order to get rid of an insect before they are sent out of the islands. A number of citrus fruits are also grown on the islands.

According to Clark, very few raids were made by the Japs on the island on which he was stationed. On the other hand, it was said, these islands were the starting off place for many operations against the Japs.

Briefly, Clark spoke of some of the diseases, including malaria. The birds, it was said, are quite colorful, and there is an abundance of fish.

The meeting, which was in charge of one of the vice-presidents, Alvin Clarence, was attended by about 35 members.

John H. Wright, of this place, and Irwin S. Hellerick, Plumsteadville, were elected into membership of the club.

The club will observe charter night at a meeting at the Casa Conti, Glenside, on December 5th, and a Christmas program will be presented at the meeting on December 19th.

Forces of Patton Smash Forward To Reach Saar

that after several hours of bitter fighting the main German line was forced "hundreds of yards back."

The Third Army struck to the heavily defended Saar River area in three places near Merzig. A front a mile in length was reported established by the Yanks along the Saar river, forcing the Germans to blow up the Merzig bridge in an effort to delay Patton's armored units from achieving a crossing which would immediately threaten the industrial city of Saarbrücken. Meanwhile American tanks were said to have reached the western approaches.

German's main defense forces in the north were hurled back across the Roer river in unchecked drives by the American Ninth and First armies.

Repeated Nazi counter-attacks were smashed and the Germans were reported working feverishly to prepare defenses on the east bank of the Roer after the Yanks seized sizable portions of the west bank.

Bridges spanning the Roer were blown hurriedly by the Nazis to impede the Americans and temporarily prevent mobile forces from pouring eastward across the plain leading to the Rhine.

O Master Workman of the race, Thou Christ of Galilee, we lift our hearts to Thee in prayer for those who toil in shop and marketplace and home. Give to them a sense of Thy interest and concern for us all in whatever we do. May we see Thy face before us at every hour of the day; and when by evil we are tempted, may we sit at the foot of Thy Cross and look up to Thee for strength. Thou art our comforter and guide, a help in trouble, a friend in every time of need. Hear Thou our prayer for our loved ones and friends in the service of our country and may the peace of God that passeth understanding keep our hearts and minds. In Jesus' name. Amen.

BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

Deer season opens today... one of Pennsylvania's most popular hunting seasons opens today with present reports indicating that hundreds of men will be in the field for deer.

The state herds are said to be quite large in many sections, although only bucks are legal quarry. Next year a doe season will also probably be included. The season will close to December 15th. Several small herds are reported in our county but in most instances it is dangerous to use a high-powered rifle because of the density of population.

First deer to come back to Bristol this year was one killed in Maine. Saw it over at the Railway Express agency Wednesday afternoon. The next week will see several more brought back to town.

The bear season, which ended yesterday, got off to a poor start on November 27th, and the total kill will probably be less than expected. Rising temperatures and light rains dispersed the tracking snow in the mountain sections and this made it more difficult to hunt Mr. Bruin.

Although the continuing mild weather is fine as far as the coal pile is concerned it isn't helping improve duck hunting in this section. The flight birds are moving but not in great numbers here. Was on the River on Thanksgiving Day. Saw a dozen ducks early in the morning and that was all during the whole day. Quite a number of hunters were out with very little luck. Clarence Winter, hunting off the foot of Burlington Island, killed two early in the morning.

Gave it a try Monday and Wednesday evenings of this week. Didn't see a duck Monday and only a few Wednesday. A total bag of 14 ducks was reported today by local hunters on the River below Bristol on Monday.

End of small game season... yesterday, with the closing of the season the general consensus among hunters was that it was a poor year. At the beginning of the season the excuse was that the cover was too heavy but as the season progressed, and the cover decreased, there was no proportionate increase in the game kill. Heavier, and more concentrated stocking by the Game Commission in those areas which are heavily hunted would probably help the situation.

Source of revenue... with the opening of the muskrat season today there is an opportunity in this section to earn an extra dollar by trapping this burrower which is quite plentiful in our nearby streams and marshes. The season will close on February 1, 1945. Seasons for the mink and skunk began on November 1st and will end on Feb. 1st. There is no season on the opossum, the Game Commission putting this animal on the unprotected list until September 30, 1945.

Muskrat pelts will again demand a good price this season, although not as high as last season when they were on a par with 1939. Selling prices will keep them somewhat lower than last season, but they will still command enough to make it worthwhile to trap them.

Remember, all your traps must be tagged with your name and address. The penalty is quite severe for non-observance of this regulation.

Season over... yesterday marked the end of the game fish season, except for ice-fishing for pickerel, in the State. High temperatures and low waters helped produce a very mediocre bass season this year. Winner of the bass fishing contest, sponsored by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association for its members, is Francis Cummons with his 2 pound, 14-ounce entry. He took this catch in Otters Creek, below Bath Road. Last year's winner was a three and one-half pound bass caught by George Eiling.

Points Out Post War Needs

only 25 at a time and there are 250 students enrolled in industrial arts courses. The home economics department can now accommodate only classes of 15 to 18 girls because of lack of space, and all students now want some extra training in addition to the academic training.

"One bright spot in the vocational training program is government aid. The government has installed $30,000 worth of equipment but we must have more space to make use of it properly. And after victory, surplus government equipment will be available in large quantities to those communities with established vocational training programs.

"While Bristol high school needs a good athletic field there is no need to spend several hundreds of dollars to fill in a ravine when the field needs extensive repairs of $5000 to $6000.

"The main need is a building large enough to house all the various departments and to take care of future increased student enrollment.

"Planning for the financial set-up of this program is part of the post-war planning need. By July of next year the total bonded indebtedness will be reduced to $80,000. The board has authority to increase this to $128,000, without voice of the electorate, and this borrowing can be raised to a maximum of $448,000 with the consent of the electorate.

"Therefore, from every angle, there is available sufficient funds to institute this program.

"We must not lose sight of the fact that the teachers are a very important part of the school system. We must not think of schools just in terms of buildings. And to secure and keep first class teachers we must see that the salaries are kept high enough to attract teachers of this caliber. In any post-war planning program, we must get away from the idea of seeing how cheaply we can get by, and we should instead make it a point to see how well we can build, maintain good teaching staffs, and meet the needs of the future."

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Courier:

While your article in your issue of Nov. 24th "How Can Bicycle Auto Accidents Be Avoided" was very good as far as it went, it seems to the writer that this covered only one side of the picture, that of the bicycle and was directed squarely at them alone, giving the inference that motorists bear no responsibility in the matter and that they can do as they please, as is born out by the way automobiles are operated in this town with no regard for the laws.

I suggest that you print the following suggestions covering motorists and give them the same publicity that you gave the aforementioned article.

"Motorists desist from speeding up to sixty miles per hour on busy streets such as Farragut ave., Wilson ave., Radcliffe st., Otter st., etc., as they do at the present time.

"Motorists obey 'stop signs' and traffic lights, which many do not do at the present time.

"Motorists slow up at intersections instead of plowing through with no regard for the rights of others coming from other directions or pedestrians crossing the streets.

"Busses pull in to the curb when receiving and discharging passengers instead of stopping in the line of traffic as they do now.

"Motorists desist from parking in 'No Parking Areas,' especially on Pond st. near Lincoln ave., where normal traffic is often held up due to the number of cars parked in violation of the law.

"Get the police on the job and enforce some of these laws, which they do not do now.

"The law states that a pedestrian has the right of way when crossing a street at a crosswalk, but if he insists on his rights in Bristol he will wind up in the hospital or the cemetery."

"Thanking you, I remain,

Very truly yours,

and life saving of the Camden Chapter of the Red Cross, but now serving in the U. S. N. R. and acting as an armed guard commander in a vessel, wrote to William Atkinson, the Camden county chairman of the Red Cross.

In part Ensign Harris, who more recently has been living at Haddon Heights, N. J., wrote as follows: "While I was in port recently I applied for some sweaters for my armed guard crew. As always, when I get gifts for the boys, I look for some indication of the donor. This time I had a real thrill, so so much so that I stopped unpacking the box. These sweaters came from the Camden County, N. J., Red Cross.

"It isn't often you are able to say, 'Hello' and 'Thank you' at the same time. However, I feel as if I know the knitters who did these sweaters, so say 'Hello' and 'Thank you' to them for the armed guard crew on the vessel on which I am serving."

Since writing the letter Ensign Harris telephoned his wife, Adelaide, and son, Dick, that his vessel has arrived at a Southern port.

SMOKEY, COMBAT INFANTRY MASCOT, RETURNS HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

By International News Service
SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Dec. 1 (INS) — "Smockey" and her G.I. master are on the way home for Christmas after serving 29 months in the Southwest Pacific with the 32nd Infantry Division.

Smockey is a mongrel dog, whose home for the last three and a half years has been wherever Uncle Sam decided to station the combat division.

Smockey was just a stray brown and white dog back in 1941 when a group of soldiers stationed at Camp Livingston, La., "inducted" her into the infantry. Later, when the division moved north to Fort Devens, Mass., Smockey was on the troop train. Next time the trip to the west coast, and the mascot of Company "X" was just beginning her travels.

In April of 1942, the Red Arrow Division left the United States bound for Australia and Smockey was smuggled aboard a troop transport in a barracks bag. The Pacific held no beauty for Smockey, and she was seasick most of the way. But she was one of the first "GIs" to see overseas duty in this theatre.

Smockey liked the "Land Down

Under" and was having the time of her life trotting along beside the troops as they drilled and hiked.

In a few months the division sailed north to New Guinea and the battle at Buna. The commanding officer decided it was no place for Smockey, so she was left behind with the rear echelon at Port Moresby. When the Japs had been turned back, the 32nd Division was again stationed in Australia. When the division returned to the combat area, Smockey was with it.

Only once during her Army career did she report for sick call, limping in one day with an injured foot, which had to be bandaged. She always reported at drill call and usually was the first one out for reveille.

When Tech. Sergt. Warren Johnson, of Winchester, Wis., left for home after 29 months overseas, Smockey, who also met the rotation requirements, accompanied him.

and the former the Tunganians. Coconut growing is quite extensive on the islands, and Clark said a number of men have been killed as the result of coconuts falling on them. All coconuts, it was said, must be smoked in order to get rid of an insect before they are sent out of the islands. A number of citrus fruits are also grown on the islands.

According to Clark, very few raids were made by the Japs on the island on which he was stationed. On the other hand, it was said, these islands were the starting off place for many operations against the Japs.

Briefly, Clark spoke of some of the diseases, including malaria. The birds, it was said, are quite colorful, and there is an abundance of fish.

The meeting, which was in charge of one of the vice-presidents, Alvin Clarence, was attended by about 35 members.

John H. Wright, of this place, and Irwin S. Hellerick, Plumsteadville, were elected into membership of the club.

The club will observe charter night at a meeting at the Casa Conti, Glenside, on December 5th, and a Christmas program will be presented at the meeting on December 19th.

Forces of Patton Smash Forward To Reach Saar

that after several hours of bitter fighting the main German line was forces "hundreds of yards back."

The Third Army struck to the heavily defended Saar River area in three places near Merzig. A front a mile in length was reported established by the Yanks along the Saar river, forcing the Germans to blow up the Merzig bridge in an effort to delay Patton's armored units from achieving a crossing which would immediately threaten the industrial city of Saarbrücken. Meanwhile American tanks were said to have reached the western approaches.

German's main defense forces in the north were hurled back across the Roer river in unchecked drives by the American Ninth and First armies.

Repeated Nazi counter-attacks were smashed and the Germans were reported working feverishly to prepare defenses on the east bank of the Roer after the Yanks seized sizable portions of the west bank.

Bridges spanning the Roer were blown hurriedly by the Nazis to impede the Americans and temporarily prevent mobile forces from pouring eastward across the plain leading to the Rhine.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Matthew was standing by the fireplace, his pipe in his mouth. He commented, "You look very pretty this evening, Mrs. Norman."

"Thank you."

"I like you in green," she said, laughing.

"In whatever it is. In anything at all."

She said, "You look terribly wide awake."

"I am. Let's go out and dance."

"At this hour?"

"Midnight? It's only the shank of the evening, my good girl."

She said, smiling, "You have to be at the hospital in the morning, early. Wait till I straighten things up and we'll go to bed."

"Why can't Nils?" he asked.

"I let him off early. He's been up quite a lot lately and I think he's coming down with a cold."

"You spoil your servants."

"I don't think so," demurred Judith; "after all, it's give-and-take in that relationship too."

O Master Workman of the race, Thou Christ of Galilee, we lift our hearts to Thee in prayer for those who toil in shop and marketplace and home. Give to them a sense of Thy interest and concern for us all in whatever we do. May we see Thy face before us at every hour of the day; and when by evil we are tempted, may we sit at the foot of Thy Cross and look up to Thee for strength. Thou art our comforter and guide, a help in trouble, a friend in every time of need. By JOE ELBERSON

Deer season opens today . . . one of Pennsylvania's most popular hunting seasons opens today with present reports indicating that hundreds of men will be in the field for deer.

The state herds are said to be quite large in many sections, although only bucks are legal quarry. Next year a doe season will also probably be included. The season will continue to December 15th. Several small herds are reported in our county but in most instances it is dangerous to use a high-powered rifle because of the density of population.

First deer to come back to Bristol this year was one killed in Maine. Saw it over at the Railway Express agency Wednesday afternoon. The next week will see several more brought back to town.

The bear season, which ended yesterday, got off to a poor start on November 27th, and the total kill will probably be less than expected. Rising temperatures and light rains dispersed the tracking snow in the mountain sections and this made it more difficult to hunt Mr. Bruin.

Although the continuing mild weather is fine as far as the coal pile is concerned it isn't helping improve duck hunting in this section. The flight birds are moving but not in great numbers here. Was on the River on Thanksgiving Day. Saw a dozen ducks early in the morning and that was all during the whole day. Quite a number of hunters were out with very little luck. Clarence Winter, hunting off the foot of Burlington Island, killed two early in the morning.

Gave it a try Monday and Wednesday evenings of this week. Didn't see a duck Monday and only a few Wednesday. A total bag of 14 ducks was reported taken by local hunters on the River below Bristol on Monday.

End of small game season . . . yesterday, with the closing of the season the general consensus among hunters was that it was a poor year. At the beginning of the season the excuse was that the cover was too heavy but as the season progressed, and the cover decreased, there was no proportionate increase in the game kill. Heavier, and more concentrated stocking by the Game Commission in those areas which are heavily hunted would probably help the situation.

Source of revenue . . . with the opening of the muskrat season today there is an opportunity in this section to run an extra dollar by trapping this burrower which is quite plentiful in our nearby streams and marshes. The season will close on February 1, 1945. Seasons for the mink and skunk began on November 1st and will end on Feb. 1st. There is no season on the opossum, the Game Commission putting this animal on the unprotected list until September 30, 1945.

Muskrat pelts will again demand a good price this season, although not as high as last season when they were on a par with 1939. Ceiling prices will keep them somewhat lower than last season, but they will still command enough to make it worthwhile to trap them.

Remember, all your traps must be tagged with your name and address. The penalty is quite severe for non-observance of this regulation.

Season over . . . yesterday marked the end of the game fish season, except for ice-fishing for pickerel, in the State. High temperatures and low waters helped produce a very mediocre bass season this year. Winner of the bass fishing contest, sponsored by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association for its members, is Francis Cummons with his 2 pound, 14-ounce entry. He took this catch in Otters Creek, below Bath Road. Last year's winner was a three and one-half pound bass caught by George Eifing.

In The Borough of Bristol

only 25 at a time and there are 250 students enrolled in industrial arts courses. The home economics department can now accommodate only classes of 15 to 18 girls because of lack of space, and all students now want some extra training in addition to the academic training.

"One bright spot in the vocational training program is government aid. The government has installed $30,000 worth of equipment but we must have more space to make use of it properly. And after victory, surplus government equipment will be available in large quantities to those communities with established vocational training programs.

"While Bristol high school needs a good athletic field there is no need to spend several hundreds of dollars to fill in a rathole when the field needs extensive repairs of $5000 to $6000.

"The main need is a building large enough to house all the various departments and to take care of future increased student enrollment.

"Planning for the financial setup of this program is part of the post-war planning need. By July of next year the total bonded indebtedness will be reduced to $30,000. The board has authority to increase this to $125,000, without voice of the electorate, and this borrowing can be raised to a maximum of $445,000 with the consent of the electorate.

"Therefore, from every angle, there is available sufficient funds to institute this program.

"We must not lose sight of the fact that the teachers are a very important part of the school system. We must not think of schools just in terms of buildings. And to secure and keep first class teachers we must see that the salaries are kept high enough to attract teachers of this caliber. In any post-war planning program we must get away from the idea of seeing how cheaply we can get by, and we should instead make it a point to see how well we can build, maintain good teaching staffs, and meet the needs of the future."

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Courier:

While your article in your issue of Nov. 24th "How Can Bicycle Auto Accidents Be Avoided" was very good as far as it went, it seems to the writer that this covered only one side of the picture, that of the bicycle and was directed squarely at them alone, giving the inference that motorists bear no responsibility in the matter and that they can do as they please, as is born out by the way automobiles are operated in this town with no regard for the laws.

I suggest that you print the following suggestions covering motorists and give them the same publicity that you gave the aforementioned article.

"Motorists desist from speeding up to sixty miles per hour on busy streets such as Farragut ave., Wilson ave., Radcliffe st., Otter st., etc., as they do at the present time.

"Motorists obey 'stop signs' and traffic lights, which many do not do at the present time.

"Motorists slow up at intersections instead of plowing through with no regard for the rights of others coming from other directions or pedestrians crossing the streets.

"Buses pull in to the curb when receiving and discharging passengers instead of stopping in the line of traffic as they do now.

"Motorists desist from parking in 'No Parking Areas,' especially on Pond st. near Lincoln ave., where normal traffic is often held up due to the number of cars parked in violation of the law.

"Get the police on the job and enforce some of these laws, which they do not do now.

"The law states that a pedestrian has the right of way when crossing a street at a crosswalk, but if he insists on his rights in Bristol he will wind up in the hospital or the cemetery."

Very truly yours,

and life saving of the Camden Chapter of the Red Cross, but now serving in the U. S. N. R. and acting as an armed guard commander in a vessel, wrote to William Atkinson, the Camden county chairman of the Red Cross.

In part Ensign Harris, who more recently has been living at Haddon Heights, N. J., wrote as follows: "While I was in port recently I applied for some sweaters for my armed guard crew. As always, when I get gifts for the boys, I look for some indication of the donor. This time I had a real thrill, so so much so that I stopped unpacking the box. These sweaters came from the Camden County, N. J., Red Cross.

"It isn't often you are able to say, 'Hello' and 'Thank you' at the same time. However, I feel as if I know the knitters who did these sweaters, so say 'Hello' and 'Thank you' to them for the armed guard crew on the vessel on which I am serving."

Since writing the letter Ensign Harris telephoned his wife, Adelaide, and son, Dick, that his vessel has arrived at a Southern port.

cussion were the Red Cross, the Emergency Hospital and the Boy Scouts. None of the representatives spoke authoritatively for their organizations as the subject had not been laid before them.

Mrs. Irvin M. James, representative of the Burpee Playground committee, speaking on the objections of the Village Improvement Association stated that as the chest was planned for the borough only, she thought that there would be considerable difficulty in drawing the boundary line and that a second drive would be necessary in the townships and in other boroughs that ordinarily contribute substantially to the hospital each year.

Charles F. Beatty expressed the opinion that the chest should be started and that those organizations that did not want to come in at the beginning would undoubtedly join it later. He said that it was likely that at first as much money would not be secured as on separate drives, but that after the public became familiar with the operation of the chest, a larger amount would be gotten than is gotten now.

A brief report of the Servicemen's committee by Capt. George C. Butler, chairman, was the only other business before the meeting. Capt. Butler was authorized to send Christmas gifts to wounded soldiers and sailors in hospitals in this country, of which he reported that there are about six or eight.

A recommendation by Charles Beatty that the council take up the subject of town planning at some date in the near future was approved at the meeting. No explanation of the purpose, in addition to zoning, was explained.
